OVERVIEW

Publications: In addition to over 60 sole-authored articles, author of five books: Constructing Human Nature: The Political Challenges of Genetic Engineering, (2022). The Human Rights State (2016); Human Rights as Social Construction (2012) [translation 作为社会建构的人权 in 2020 by 中国人民大学出版社]; Thick Moralities, Thin Politics (2003); and Coping in Politics with Indeterminate Norms (2003). His work has been translated into German, Portuguese, Italian, Japanese, and Chinese.

Teaching: He teaches bioethics, informed by philosophy and sociology, at the University of Texas at Austin as well as occasionally in Germany (Frankfurt), Austria (Linz and Innsbruck), Sweden (Lund), Japan (Tokyo and Hokkaido), China (Beijing), and Brazil (Goiânia). The College of Liberal Arts Committees on Research and Teaching awarded him the Silver Spurs Fellowship in recognition of outstanding scholarship and teaching. He has conducted graduate master classes at the Universidade Federal de Goiás in Brazil, at the Martin-Luther-Universität Halle-Wittenberg in Germany, at the University of Hokkaido in Japan, and at the University of Glasgow in the UK.

Research: His current research agenda proceeds along several tracks that intersect at points: political bioethics; political challenges of artificial intelligence; and human rights as social science, not theology or metaphysics. Two book-manuscripts in progress: The Political Challenges of an Artificial Intelligence Increasingly Independent of Social Responsibility; and Indigeneity as Social Construct and Political Tool: Critique of a Contested Identity, Reconstructed for Future Deployment

Grants: He has received grants, in 2024, for research on reception of Darwin’s theory of evolution in Southeast Asia and North Africa; in 2023, for establishing university-to-university-level collaboration with the Center for Bioethics, Faculty of Medicine, Gadjah Mada University, Yogyakarta, Indonesia; in 2023-25, from the National Science Foundation, for collaboration with laboratory scientists, on ethical issues of the new technology and how they may be addressed through new design features: “Building a Cell from Scratch: Design and Ethics”; in 2021/2022, as the Fulbright Distinguished Chair in Public International Law at Lund University, Sweden; in 2022, as a visiting researcher at the Centre for Biomedical Ethics, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore: “Might the Bioethical Principle of Individual Decisional Autonomy Have a Politically Liberalizing Effect on Soft Authoritarian Communities?”; in 2019, as a visiting researcher at the Danish Institute for Human Rights, Copenhagen: “Beyond Due Diligence: The Human Rights Corporation”; in 2018, as a visiting researcher at the Uehiro Centre for Practical Ethics and at the Ethox Centre, both University of Oxford: “Creating Human Nature: The Political Challenges of Genetic Engineering.”

COMPETITIVE RESEARCH GRANTS RECEIVED IN THE PAST FIVE YEARS

2023/2024

College of Liberal Arts, UT-Austin

Description: Grant to develop syllabus for I will offer a new Plan II Honors Social Science seminar on “Darwin’s Theory of Evolution: Major Controversies” to better prepare students to participate in respectful and constructive disagreement on important and complex topics, and to engage in civil discourse in the classroom; and to expose students to a range of perspectives gathered on one short trip to Southeast Asia (Malaysia, Indonesia, the Philippines) and on a second short trip to North Africa (Morocco, Tunisia) via filmed interviews canvassing a range of perspectives on Darwin’s theory not otherwise thematized in our North America and Europe-centered seminar

Project Title: “Darwin’s Theory of Evolution: Major Controversies in Reception Beyond the Christian West: Southeast Asia and North Africa”

Amount: $10,000

Deliverable: New seminar that addresses the social and political challenges faced by developments in natural science in general, and by Darwin’s theory of evolution in particular, as well as research and publication on the theory’s troubled reception beyond the Christian West, specifically in parts of Southeast Asia and North Africa

2023

Office of Texas Global, UT-Austin

Description: Faculty Travel Planning Grant to travel to Indonesia to establish a university-to-university-level collaboration with Gadjah Mada University and in preparation for application for a follow-up Texas Global funding opportunity

Project Title: “The Bioethical Principle of Individual Autonomy in Illiberal States: Challenges for Cross-National Gene-Editing Guidelines”

Amount: $2500

Deliverable: university-to-university-level collaboration with the Center for Bioethics and Medical Humanities, Faculty of Medicine, Gadjah Mada University, Yogyakarta, Java, Indonesia

2023/2024/2025

National Science Foundation (Principle Investigators: Professor Brian Belardi, Department of Chemical Engineering, and Professor Jeanne Stachowiak, Department of Biomedical Engineering, both UT)

Project Title: Synthetic Adhesive Cells: Engineering Interfaces Between Synthetic and Live Cells for Controlled Delivery

Amount: $1,051,796 over three years

One Deliverable (others are expected): Development of a new team-taught undergraduate course titled "Building a Cell from Scratch: Design and Ethics" (cross-listed in the Cockrell School of Engineering and the College of Liberal Arts), which in part considers ethical issues of the new technology and how these issues might be addressed through new design features

My Role: bioethics consultant on ethical implications of the research aims of the NSF project as well as developing the syllabus

2021/2022

2021-2022 Fulbright Distinguished Chair in Public International Law at Lund University, Sweden. Joint appointment with Law School and Raoul Wallenberg Institute of Human Rights and Humanitarian Law

Project title: Human Rights and Human Genetic Engineering

Amount: 560,000 SEK

Deliverables:

(a) forthcoming March 2023. “Genetic Engineering Revolutions.” Handbook of the Anthropocene, C. Wulf and N. Wallenhorst, eds. London, Berlin, New York: Springer-Nature

(b) 2022. “The Person-Affecting/Identity-Affecting Distinction Between Forms of Human Germline Genome Editing Is Useless in Practical Ethics.” American Journal of Bioethics 22 (9):49-51

(d) 2022. Regulating Genetic Engineering Guided by Human Dignity, Not Genetic Essentialism. Politics and the Life Sciences. 41(1):60-75

2022

Office of the Vice President for Research & Creative Grants, UT-Austin

Description: Visiting Researcher, Centre for Biomedical Ethics, Yong Loo Lin School of Medicine, National University of Singapore

Project Title: “Evaluating Bioethical Regulation in a Non-Democratic State: Singapore”

Amount: $10,000 (due to Covid pandemic, not accessed until summer 2022)

Deliverable: “Might the Bioethical Principle of Individual Decisional Autonomy Have a Politically Liberalizing Effect on Soft Authoritarian Communities?” Under revise and resubmit at Politics and Life Sciences.

Center for European Studies, UT-Austin

Description: Research at the Danish Institute for Human Rights (Copenhagen), at the invitation of the research group “Human Rights and Business” to research practical strategies for going beyond the current corporate standard (due diligence) with respect to human rights observance

Amount: $2000

Deliverable: 2020. “Beyond Due Diligence: The Human Rights Corporation.” Human Rights Review. 22:65-89.

2018

Humanities Research Award, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, UT

Project Title: Human Nature as Cultural Design: The Political Challenges of Genetic Enhancement

Amount: $5000 for each of three years, 2014-2017; I was able to use a portion in 2018 to help make possible a visiting fellowship at Uehiro Centre for Practical Ethics and at the Ethox Centre (Nuffield Department of Population Health), both University of Oxford

Deliverable: 2022. Creating Human Nature: The Political Challenges of Genetic Engineering. New York: Cambridge University Press

Center for European Studies, UT-Austin

Description: One week visit to the Centre for Sami Studies at the University of Tromsø, Norway, to consult with scholars of Norway's Saami community with a focus on the operationalization of indigenous rights

Amount: $2000

Deliverables:

(a) 2020. "The Indigenous Rights State." Ratio Juris 33(1):98-116

(b) 2019. "Indigeneity as Social Construct and Political Tool." Human Rights Quarterly 41(4):823-848

Planet Texas 2050 Bridging Barriers, Research Group "Resources, stress, and population dynamics in premodern urban environments"

Amount: $6348 (for 2018/2019)

Deliverables:

(a) 2022. Chapter 10, "Genetic Engineering as a Technology of the Anthropocene," in Gregg. Creating Human Nature: The Political Challenges of Genetic Engineering. New York: Cambridge University Press

(b) 2018. Human Genetic Engineering: Biotic Justice in the Anthropocene? In D. DellaSala and M. Goldstein, eds. Encyclopedia of the Anthropocene, vol. 4:351-359. Oxford, UK: Elsevier
