

The Regina Rogoff Public Interest Law Fellowship

Regina Rogoff is a graduate of the University School of Law and since 2003 has served as the CEO of Peoples Community Clinic in Austin, Texas. Its mission is to improve the health of medically underserved and uninsured Central Texans by providing high quality, affordable health care with dignity and respect.

Prior to coming to the Clinic, Regina was Executive Director of Legal Aid of Central Texas for twenty years and a Legal Aid staff attorney for ten years, beginning her career as a Vista lawyer. She has held numerous leadership positions in Austin's human services, legal and Jewish communities. She currently serves on the Board of the Interfaith Education Fund and is a member of the Austin Area Research Organization (AARO). She is a past co-chair of Austin Interfaith and a past-president of the Austin Area Human Services Association (now One Voice Central Texas).

Under her leadership, People's Community Clinic received the Samaritan Center's 2005 Ethics in Business Award. Among Ms. Rogoff's personal honors, the Austin Bar Association created the "Regina Rogoff Award" to be given annually to a Travis County attorney who demonstrates outstanding service in the public/non-profit sector. In 2014 she was recognized by the Austin Business Journal as Non-Profit CEO of the Year, and in 2015 she received UT Law School's Distinguished Alumnus for Public Service Award. She takes special pride in having introduced "Facing History and Ourselves," a nationally recognized anti-racism program, to the Austin area.

The Regina Rogoff Public Interest Law Fellowship is awarded in hopes that the recipient will be inspired by what successful lawyers like Regina Rogoff do in the public's interest as an essential part of their career, and will make a similar commitment.
