Dear Michael:

What's this I read about you saying something like "I'm 55 years old and whatever I'll accomplish has already mostly been accomplished."

Growing older without eroding one's ideals and believing that your greatest accomplishments are still ahead of you is the best way to over-ride Father Time.

So enjoy this book that my mother said to send to you--it comes in three sections. Once you pick some of the recipes, peruse my Dad's observations in context of those years.

Best wishes,
