This Volume is current as of May 2015.

What Are We Doing to the Children? An Essay on Juvenile (In)justice, 22 OhioStateJCrL849 (2010). This essay is taken from a lecture at Ohio State in honor of David Bodiker. You will note that I discuss a case tried by my son, Judge Jon Tigar, as well as work by the Texas Civil Rights Project. Significant legal work is being done in the field of juvenile rights, and I discuss some of it in this work. Filename: 2-22OhioStJCrL849.pdf

Ways of Seeing, Ways of Judging, an essay for the Central District of California Judicial Conference, April 2, 2011. This is another look at “double consciousness,” and a tribute to Judge Robert Takasugi. Filename: 3WaysofSeeing&Judging.pdf

Respecting Atticus Finch, and Scout, an essay for the ABA Conference on Professional Responsibility, Memphis, June 2, 2011. This program centered on a documentary about the book To Kill a Mockingbird and its author. Monroe Freedman has wisely and pointedly criticized Atticus’s conduct. I believe, however, that the theme of his defense of Tom Robinson has much to teach us. Filename: 4atticusabamemphis.pdf.

Crisis in the Legal Profession: Don't Mourn, Organize, a paper for the Carhart Conference on Legal Ethics, Ohio Northern University, March 30, 2011, 37 Ohio. N. L. Rev. 539 (2011). The opening sentences of this essay, based on a lecture given at the Conference, set out the theme. Legal “ethics” have little to do with ethical issues, and the legal profession is increasingly guided by the interests of corporate clients and the law firms that represent them. Foreword to James C. Harrington, Wrestling with Free Speech, Religious Freedom, and Democracy in Turkey: The Political Trials and Times of Fethullah Gülen (2011). Jim Harrington founded and has directed the Texas Civil Rights Project. I was glad to do this introduction. Filename: 6Harringtonforeword2.pdf

Aspirations, 2 J. L. & Interdisciplinary Studies 9 (2012). The editors asked for an essay on what I was doing and thinking in 1963. 7Aspirations2012.pdf

Blog post about Kiobel v. Royal Dutch Shell, 133 S.Ct. 1659 (2013). My blog is at <http://tigarbytes.blogspot.com/>. I have included this post because the Kiobel decision is so important and I think (egotistically) that my analysis is interesting. 8METreKiobel.pdf

Remarks on drones at Fair Trial Initiative, October 27, 2011. Filename: 9FairTrialInitiative.pdf

An essay on universal jurisdiction, drawing together thoughts and writings. I wrote this for a conference at The University of Texas School of Law, April 7, 2014, where Juan Garces and I would share our views on this topic. Filename: 10TigarUniversalJurisEssay.pdf

The National Security State -- The End of Separation of Powers, Monthly Review July-August 2014. This article was part of a special issue on national security and the "surveillance state." Filename: 11SeparationofPowersMR2014.pdf

Missing McVeigh. This is a review of Jody Madeira's book Killing McVeigh. It contains my thoughts about the victim responses to the Oklahoma City bombing. I also discuss the broader question of memory v. history. I like this one. Filename: 12METReviewKillingMcVeigh.pdf
