 interviewing Policy
for On-Campus and Off-Campus Interview Programs

Updated October 19, 2020

An interview is a formal commitment between the student and an employer. Texas Law students are expected to attend any and all scheduled interviews, including mock and informational interviews. It is unprofessional to schedule an interview and fail to attend. To do this reflects poorly on the offending student, The University of Texas School of Law, and our student body. Failing to attend an interview, or cancelling an interview at the last minute, is unfair to students who were unable to receive an interview slot and to the attorneys who participate in our interview programs.

Students and recent graduates wishing to participate in any of the interview programs offered by the Career Services Office (CSO), including on- and off-campus interview programs and mock interviews, must first read and abide by the rules of both this policy and the “Resume and Transcript Policy.”

Law school exams will not be postponed or rescheduled for any interview. This includes on- and off-campus interviews, mock interviews, callback interviews, and any other independent programs or programs sponsored by the CSO. The CSO encourages you to make every effort to schedule your interviews so that they do not conflict with exams.

Interview Cancellations
The CSO does not encourage interview cancellations. However, if you must cancel an interview, you are required to notify the CSO via our online cancellation form at least two business days in advance of the scheduled interview time, so that another student may interview in your place.

If you cancel an interview less than two business days in advance of the scheduled interview (see below), this is considered a last-minute cancellation. You are responsible for contacting the CSO at cso-cancellations@law.utexas.edu, as well as the employer with your reasons for canceling the interview (see following sample cancellation letter and email), as soon as possible. A copy of your email/letter to the employer must also be submitted to the CSO within five calendar days of the cancelled interview.

Example: If you need to cancel an interview scheduled for Monday at 10 a.m., you will need to cancel no later than the prior Thursday at 10 a.m. If you need to cancel an interview scheduled for Friday at 2 p.m., you will need to cancel no later than the prior Wednesday at 2 p.m.
Failure to comply with the above last-minute cancellation policy will result in the following:

- First last-minute cancellation: You may be precluded from interviewing again or submitting resumes to interviewing employers for the remainder of the interviewing program.
- Second last-minute cancellation: You may be denied access to the Symplicity system and prohibited from participating in remaining interviews and/or interview programs for the rest of the semester.
- Third last-minute cancellation: You may be denied access to the Symplicity system and prohibited from participating in remaining interviews and/or interview programs for the rest of the semester as well as the next semester.
- Additional last-minute cancellations may result in restriction from all further use of CSO resources.

No-Shows for Interviews Received Through the CSO
If you fail to show for an interview received through the CSO without prior notification to the employer and the CSO, you are considered a “no-show.” You are responsible for writing a letter to the employer stating your reasons for missing the interview. A copy of this letter must be submitted to the CSO within five business days of the missed interview.

Failure to comply with the above no-show policy will result in the following:

- First no-show: You may be precluded from interviewing again or submitting resumes to interviewing employers until the CSO receives a copy of your letter. You may also be denied access to the Symplicity system and prohibited from participating in remaining interviews and/or interview programs for the remainder of the semester.
- Second no-show: You may be denied access to the Symplicity system and prohibited from participating in remaining interviews and/or interview programs for the rest of the semester as well as the next semester.
- Additional no-shows may result in restriction from all further use of CSO resources.

Accepting and Declining Employment Offers
Please familiarize yourself with our Recruiting Policies for Private-Sector Employers, especially “Standards for the Timing of Offers and Decisions”. Because Texas Law subscribes to the NALP Principles for a Fair and Ethical Recruitment Process, you should also familiarize yourself with those principles, especially “Principles for Candidates”.

In most cases you should accept or affirmatively decline an offer within 21 days following the date of the offer letter. You should not hold more than five offers open at any one time.

You should accept or decline employment offers in a prompt and courteous manner. It is common to respond to an offer in the same manner in which it was conveyed; e.g., respond to a telephone call with a telephone call, an email with an email. However, we recommend that you decline an offer by phone, when possible. In fairness to both employers and peers, students should act in good faith to promptly decline offers for employment that are no longer being seriously considered. Holding an employment offer when you have no intention of accepting it does a disservice to both your classmates, who might be extended an offer if you were to decline, and to employers who are working hard to organize successful and well-attended summer programs. Failure to accept an offer in a timely manner can cause you to lose the offer. In the most egregious cases, students neglect to ever accept or decline job offers given to them. Not only is this rude, it is also unprofessional and disruptive to the recruiting process. Be responsible and decline offers you do not want.

Nondiscrimination Policy
It is the policy of The University of Texas at Austin (“University”) to provide an educational and working environment that provides equal opportunity to all members of the University community. In accordance with federal and state law, the University prohibits unlawful discrimination, including harassment, on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, pregnancy, age, disability, citizenship, veteran status, and genetic information. The University also prohibits discrimination on the basis of, sexual orientation, gender identity, and gender expression. In this policy, the terms sex and gender are interchangeable.

The University of Texas School of Law may deny participation in recruitment and other student programs to employers whose behavior contravenes this policy.

All recruiting employers who use our services are required to affirm the following statement to confirm compliance with University policies:

I have read and understand the Nondiscrimination Policy (Handbook of Operating Procedures 3-3020) of The University of Texas at Austin. It is my intent to consider all applicants on the basis of merit and not to discriminate against any individual on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, pregnancy, age, disability, citizenship, veteran status, genetic information, sexual orientation, gender identity, and gender expression in compliance with the University’s Handbook of Operating Procedures 3-3031.

I further agree to adhere to the Principles for a Fair and Ethical Recruitment Process set forth by NALP, the Association for Legal Career Professionals.

I understand that the Career Services Office can discontinue my access to employer services at any time if I am found in violation of these standards, policies, and principles.

A limited exception to this policy exists for military recruiters, but only insofar as their employment and hiring practices are permitted under federal law. This exception to the University’s policy for military recruiters does not in any way reflect the acceptance of, or agreement with, discriminatory hiring practices.

Grievance Procedures
Please note that students may file an informal or formal grievance against an employer who asks discriminatory questions in any program or activity sponsored or conducted by The University of Texas at Austin or The University of Texas School of Law. To file an informal or formal grievance, please contact the Assistant Dean of Career Services who will connect you with the proper University personnel to assist you with your complaints.
