FOR US, WISE COUNSEL HOLDS A SPECIAL PLACE OF HONOR.

As Bracewell & Giuliani marks six decades of excellence in client service, we pause to salute the contributions our attorneys have made to our profession.
We believe in hiring top professionals and fostering a work environment that brings out their best on behalf of clients through hard work, solid values and proven leadership.

We congratulate The University of Texas School of Law for its long history of challenging young attorneys and shaping their values of client service and professional and community involvement.

We applaud Bracewell & Giuliani's University of Texas School of Law alumni and their continued commitment to excellence.

LAUDATE LIBRARIAN

I SO MUCH ENJOYED READING THE article about Roy Mersky in the UTLAW magazine! I think every UT Law student should be required to visit any other law library in the country . . . or the world . . . to really appreciate how extraordinary the library he built is and what they may sometimes take for granted!

Christiane DeWitt, B.A., '82
Austin, Texas

I WAS THRILLED WITH THE RECENT ARTIcle about Roy Mersky in the UTLAW magazine. Some 24 years ago Roy Mersky helped a lost freshlaw from Highlands, Texas, find his way around the newly opened Jones Hall Library, for which I am thankful. It's an honor to have Prof. Mersky at our school.

Barry Smitherman, '84
Austin, Texas

I WAS ABSOLUTELY DELIGHTED TO see the wonderful article about Roy Mersky in the most recent UTLAW. That was a long overdue and exceedingly well-deserved recognition.

Judge R. Terrence Ney, '69
Fairfax, Virginia

THE UTLAW MAGAZINE STORY ON ROY Mersky was very good. I was grateful for the time I worked with him in the library while a student at UT Law. That income, though meager (education costs were relatively lower then), kept me in law school—and I enjoyed working with Professor Mersky very much.

A SENSE OF HUMOR?

IT WAS WITH GREAT DISAPPOINTment that I read the Winter 2005 issue in which only a part of a submission that I made to the In Memoriam section of UTLAW was printed.

As a friend and UT Law School classmate of Patrick Black and as the executor of his will, in November 2004 I e-mailed to your column the following submission: "Ernest Patrick Black, '81, died September 22, 2004, at 55. He successfully avoided the practice of law throughout his life." The second sentence was not printed.

I cannot understand why you did not print this description of Pat's career while you routinely print the legal careers of others. Your editorial call was inappropriate. He and all who knew him would have greatly appreciated this description of a career happily spent not practicing law.

Do not forget that there can be humor, and sometimes it is most needed, even in death.

WOMEN SPEAK UP

In 1917 UT-Austin students rallied against Texas governor James Ferguson, who had threatened to veto most of UT's appropriation unless professors he found objectionable, such as UT Law's Robert Cofer, were fired. (Cofer had spoken at a county fair in favor of Ferguson's political opponent.) After the march, Ferguson's support evaporated and he resigned. The next governor, William Hobby, opened primary voting to women.

A Bright Future

Our alumni and friends constitute an incomparable asset.

Even a glance at the contributors' report in this issue of UTLAW makes one thing abundantly clear. In a time of change at the Law School, the loyal and generous support of our alumni and friends remains a constant. And just as you have been steadfast in your support, I can assure you that we are unceasing in our gratitude.

The big change at the Law School is, of course, Bill Powers' ascension to the presidency of the University. All of us associated with the Law School are delighted with Bill's good fortune and the University's good luck in having him at the helm. We fully expect Bill to replicate University-wide the great success he enjoyed in improving the Law School.

Indeed, what has happened at The University of Texas is unique in American higher education. Two former deans of our Law School now occupy the two most prominent leadership positions in our University—Mark Yudof as chancellor of the UT System and Bill Powers as president of UT-Austin. I do not know of another major university where this has ever happened, and I think it is something in which we can all take pride. First, it says a lot about the exceptional talent the Law School attracts. Both Mark and Bill started out here as young professors. They established themselves as renowned scholars, superb teachers, and then as remarkable administrators. But, as talented as they are, they did not do this alone. As young professors, they flourished in our faculty's collegial community of scholars and teachers. As deans, they were able to build on the accomplishments of their extraordinary predecessors. There are few law schools in the country that have a more illustrious roster of deans.

Their accomplishments also say a lot about you. Law deans don't just become university presidents and chancellors. That happens only if they are enormously successful, and no law dean can be successful without the strong and unstinting support of the alumni. In so many ways, you have responded generously over the years to their calls for help. Your assistance has made possible many of the initiatives they, and other deans, have pursued in our efforts to become the finest public law school in the nation. And I am pleased to report that your continued support has enabled us to remain on an upward trajectory.

We continue to improve our already strong faculty. This spring was highlighted by success after success on the hiring front. We lured Bill Sage away from Columbia Law School; we enticed Dan Rodriguez, who recently stepped down as dean of the University of San Diego, to choose us over a bevy of other suitors; and we won out in the bidding for John Golden, an enormously promising rookie. Sage, who holds both a J.D. and an M.D., is the nation's leading health law scholar, and he will also hold the newly created post of vice provost for health affairs. Rodriguez served on the faculty of Boalt Hall before his highly successful deanship. A prolific author, he stands at the forefront of scholarship in local government law, federal and state constitutional law, and the political economy of regulation and government. Golden earned both a Ph.D. in physics and a J.D. from Harvard. He comes to us after a Supreme Court clerkship with Justice Breyer and several years in private practice in patent litigation, and will add depth to our intellectual property faculty.

Among the many, many generous gifts we received in the past year, I would like to highlight one. The Reaud Charitable Foundation has pledged to give $350,000 per year in perpetuity to fund the Wayne Reaud Public Interest Scholarship Program. This program will provide full-tuition scholarships and an annual stipend to five students per class who agree to work in public interest programs for three years immediately following graduation. This magnificent gift, valued at approximately $7 million, is the largest single gift in the history of the Law School. The Reaud Scholars Program will stand as a powerful symbol of the Law School's commitment to the ideal of access to justice for all. We are indebted to Wayne Reaud for his vision, commitment to justice, and munificence.

I would like to end this letter on a personal note. I am greatly honored to have had the opportunity to serve as your interim dean. I cannot begin to express adequately my gratitude to all of you who have been so encouraging and helpful in this time of transition. I appreciate beyond measure your many kind words and cooperation. The Law School is stronger than ever, and I am confident that, with your help, it will continue to prosper under the leadership of the next dean. And I am sure that our new dean will quickly discover that our alumni and friends constitute an incomparable asset.

Sincerely,

Steven Goode
Interim Dean

SPRING 2006

FALL FORWARD

This fall the Alumni Association will host a Tailgate Party, honor Keeton Fellows, and host regional receptions. You'll receive more information about these events as they draw closer. We look forward to seeing you this fall!

MARK RUTKOWSKI

ALUMNI CAN TAILGATE THIS FALL WITH EDUARDO RODRIGUEZ, '68, PRESIDENT OF THE STATE BAR OF TEXAS.

THROUGH NOVEMBER 30

The Tarlton Law Library presents "Writing Watergate: Documents from the White House and Beyond" in the Susman Godfrey Atrium. The exhibit features documents and artifacts from the Charles Alan Wright Papers and the Tex Lezar Papers. Wright was President Nixon's attorney in the Watergate tapes litigation, and Tex Lezar was a speechwriter in the Nixon White House. The exhibit will also include reproductions of documents in the Woodward-Bernstein Watergate Files, on loan from the Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center. For more information, contact Addy Sonder at (512) 232-3802 or asonder@law.utexas.edu.

MAY 20

The Sunflower Ceremony will be held on Saturday, May 20, at 3:30 p.m. in the Erwin Center. For more information about this event, contact Student Affairs at (512) 232-1116.

SEPTEMBER

Fall On-Campus Interviews (OCI) will be held September 11–29 at the Career Services Interview Suite. For more information, contact Bethany Thomason at bthomason@law.utexas.edu or (512) 232-7110.

Find out about current volunteer opportunities, summer internships, and paid positions with a variety of nonprofits, legal services providers, and government agencies at the Public Interest Table Talk. For more information, contact Tina Fernandez at tfernandez@law.utexas.edu.

OCTOBER 27–28

Parents' Day will be held at the Law School on October 27 and 28. For more information about this event, contact Student Affairs at (512) 232-1116.

The Texas Law Fellowships (TLF) will hold its annual Fall Auction in October to raise money to fund fellowships for Law School students who work in summer public interest internships. Bid on items in the live and silent auctions and support TLF's first major fundraiser of the year. For time, location, and ticket information, or to donate an item, contact TLF at tlf@mail.law.utexas.edu.

The Career Services Office will host its annual Cocktails and Conversation mentor reception in Austin. For details on the mentorship program, go online to www.utexas.edu/law/career or contact Deb Freeman at dfreeman@law.utexas.edu or (512) 232-2162.

DECEMBER 1–2

The Rapoport Center for Human Rights and Justice will host the conference "The Life and Legacy of George Lister." Lister, a career diplomat, helped craft the State Department's human rights policy during the Cold War era. The donation of his papers to UT-Austin provides scholars with an important resource for learning about the evolution of human rights policy. For more information, contact Karen Engle at (512) 232-7066 or kengle@mail.law.utexas.edu.

THIS FALL

The Law School's Office of Continuing Legal Education (CLE) plans to host numerous conferences this fall. For a complete schedule of events, visit the CLE Web site at www.utexas.edu/law/cle or call the CLE office at (512) 475-6700.

AROUND THE

Comings and Goings

WHEN THE BOARD OF Regents named Dean Bill Powers the 28th president of UT-Austin, changes occurred quickly at the Law School. Joining President Powers at the Tower were assistant dean for external relations Nancy Brazzil, director of development Tom Henninger, '92, and assistant Kathy Bartsch.

Sheldon Ekland-Olson, UT-Austin's provost, appointed Steven J. Goode dean ad interim effective February 11. Goode, who holds the G. Rollie White Teaching Excellence Chair in Law, has been a member of the Law School faculty since 1977 and is a UT Distinguished Teaching Professor. He teaches courses in evidence, criminal law, and professional responsibility.

"Professor Goode commands universal respect among his colleagues. He is a delight to work with, and we are fortunate indeed that he has agreed to assume the leadership of the Law School," said Ekland-Olson.

Goode tapped Christine Marcin, the assistant director of development, to act as the director of alumni relations. Marcin came to the Law School in 2005 from the UT-Austin president's office, where she served as a liaison with senior administrative officials, managed the president's staff, and coordinated the work of the Committee of 125, a long-range planning group for UT-Austin. In 1998 she received the UT-Austin Staff Excellence Award. Marcin graduated summa cum laude from Sul Ross State University with a degree in business administration.

Katy Civins, '75, a UT Law honors graduate and a longtime supporter of the school, is now the associate director of development. Civins has chaired and directed numerous committees for nonprofit organizations and schools that have raised substantial funds and implemented strategic plans. She practiced law for Gulf Oil and for Alonzi and Neder L.L.P. Civins also holds a master's in political science from Columbia University in addition to her B.A. in history (with distinction) from the University of Oklahoma.

Nancy Brazzil had served the Law School community for 15 years, overseeing unprecedented fundraising that helped Dean Powers and the Law School weather a state budget crisis and acquire resources to attract and retain professors as well as to expand classrooms.

"Interacting with the Law School's alumni has been one of the highlights of my working life," said Brazzil. "They are obviously bright and talented. They're also interested in the success of the Law School as an institution, and they're willing to support that interest with their time and talent and treasure. As Bill has often said, 'You know who your friends really are when times are tough.' Our alumni more than answered the call when the Law School needed them most. They have been steadfast in their support of the Law School's mission to be among the very best in the nation. I admire and respect them, and I'm honored to count so many of them as my friends."

WYATT MCSPADDEN

Steven J. Goode was appointed dean ad interim on February 11.

LAW SCHOOL

UT LAW STUDENT APPOINTED REGENT

This spring, Texas governor Rick Perry appointed Brian J. Haley, a first-year UT Law student, to the UT System Board of Regents. Haley, 24, is the first student regent in the more than 100-year history of the board. As such, he represents more than 184,000 students from the 14 institutions in the UT System.

Haley received a bachelor's degree in government from UT-Austin and served as its student government president during 2003 and 2004. He is former vice chair of the UT Student Union board of directors and a former member of the Tuition Policy Advisory Committee.

MARSHA MILLER

"We think the governor chose very wisely when he appointed Brian to the Board of Regents. Brian will be a great addition," said interim dean Steven Goode.

Alemán Retires, Ramos Rises

WYATT MCSPADDEN

Alemán retired this year after 21 years of service.

ASSISTANT DEAN FOR STUDENT AFFAIRS Susana Alemán, '84, retired after service of 21 years. Alemán supervised the Law School's Student Affairs Office, counseled thousands of law students, and helped organize events at the Law School, including Parents' Day and the Sunflower Ceremony.

The Chicano/Hispanic Law Students Association (CHLSA) announced that, in her honor, they would establish the Susana Alemán Endowed Presidential Scholarship.

After consultation with students, administrators, and faculty, Reymundo Ramos, the school's director of admissions since 2002, was tapped to replace Alemán.

Ramos is from Mission, Texas. He received his UT-Austin bachelor's degree in government in 1996. Before joining the Law School in 2002, Ramos worked as a student affairs administrator in UT's Office of the Dean of Students and as an assistant director in the Freshman Admissions Center.

A popular administrator with students, Ramos has received numerous awards, including the Eyes of Texas Excellence Award in 1997 and 2003 in recognition of outstanding contributions to student life at UT-Austin. The Student Bar Association honored Ramos as its outstanding staff/administrator during the 2006 W. Page Keeton Law Week festivities.

WYATT MCSPADDEN

Rey Ramos is the new assistant dean of students.

AROUND THE LAW SCHOOL

DOUGLAS LAYCOCK: 25 YEARS

This spring Professor Douglas Laycock announced that he will resign or retire from the Law School effective August 31, to join his wife, Dr. Teresa Sullivan, at the University of Michigan. There she will become provost and executive vice president for academic affairs.

During his 25-year career at UT, Laycock participated in the shaping of religious freedom, led the nation with his work on the law of remedies, and litigated affirmative action challenges. This past September he received UT-Austin's Civitatis Award.

"I have had a wonderful twenty-five years at Texas," Laycock said, "and but for the call of an even deeper commitment, I would never leave this place. This is a great law school, it has been making very strong faculty appointments at both the junior and the senior levels, and it will continue to be a great law school long after I am gone."

WYATT MCSPADDEN

Reese, a popular professor, serves both as a judicial clerkship advisor and as the faculty advisor of the Carlos Cadena, '40, student society.

Reese Named Top Technology Leader

THE WORLD TECHNOLOGY NETWORK NAMED PROFESSOR R. Anthony Reese one of the five most innovative scholars in law and technology. The awards annually honor individuals and corporations from twenty technology-related categories who are regarded by their peers as innovative and whose work is perceived to have long-term significance.

Others so honored in their respective fields included Linus Torvalds of Open Source Development Labs, Lawrence Lessig of Stanford University, Jeffrey Immelt of General Electric, and UK prime minister Tony Blair.

Professor Reese studies copyright, intellectual property, and cyberspace aspects of intellectual property. He came to Texas in 1999 from Stanford Law School, where he was a research fellow in the Program in Law, Science, and Technology.

UT-HARVARD COMMERCIAL REALITIES SERIES

UT's Professor Jay Westbrook and Harvard's Professor Elizabeth Warren met in Cambridge this April for the second "Commercial Realities" conference. The first conference, held in Austin, sought to cultivate rising stars in the fields of bankruptcy and commercial law. The process helped the emerging scholars meet potential mentors, exchange ideas, and investigate empirical and comparative methods of research.

Book Case

25 YEARS OF TROL

This year The Review of Litigation celebrated its 25th year of publication. TROL is the nation's top student-edited specialty journal.

To honor the occasion, the students' annual symposium focused on the future of litigation. The keynote address was given by Judge Patrick E. Higginbotham, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. Participating judges included Judge Edward C. Prado, '72, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit; district judges Sam Sparks and Xavier Rodriguez,'87, and justices Scott A. Brister and Harriett O'Neill of the Supreme Court of Texas. UT Law's Charles Silver, Tracy McCormack, '86, Alex Albright, '80, and visiting professor Lonny S. Hoffman also participated.

Also celebrating anniversaries are the Texas Journal of Women and the Law (15th, see page 59) and the Texas Review of Law and Politics (10th).

STUDENTS INAUGURATE OIL AND GAS JOURNAL

This year Nicholas Franklin, '07, led efforts to create the Texas Journal of Oil, Gas, and Energy Law (TJOGEL). The seventy-student effort was lauded in Texas Lawyer as a way to promote the field to the next generation of energy lawyers. TJOGEL is the only student-edited journal in the country focused on promoting scholarship in the energy legal field.

Peroni and Steiker Receive Teaching Awards

THE STUDENT SELECTION committee for the Texas Exes Faculty Teaching Award chose Professor Robert J. Peroni as the recipient of the 2005–06 award. Peroni holds the James A. Elkins Centennial Chair in Law and has taught at the Law School since 2003. His primary areas of teaching and scholarship are federal income taxation, international taxation, natural resource taxation, and professional responsibility/legal ethics.

"The SBA-Texas Exes Teaching Awards Committee selected Professor Peroni based on the overwhelming number of nominations he received from students," said Student Bar Association president Ann Hsu. "Having been a student in his Federal Income Tax class, I wholeheartedly agree with the committee's decision. Professor Peroni is an engaging speaker who is not only incredibly well versed in tax law but also genuinely interested in the progress of his students and available as a resource, mentor, and friend," she said.

The Student Bar Association Board of Governors selected Professor Jordan Steiker as the faculty honoree for this year's W. Page Keeton Law Week. Steiker is the Cooper K. Ragan Regents Professor. He teaches constitutional law, criminal law, and death penalty law, and works with the school's Capital Punishment Clinic.

Hsu said that Steiker was honored not only for his outstanding reputation as a faculty member but also for his work as as advisor to the Sheffield Society. "Professor Steiker's high level of involvement in his students' lives was the major factor in selecting him as this year's honoree."

(See related article on Reymundo Ramos, who was also honored by the SBA.)

Professor Jordan Steiker (far right) was honored for his teaching and his work in the student societies.

President-elect Carrin Patman,'82

The Alumni Association has named Carrin Patman, '82, its president-elect. Her term will start September 1, 2006.

Patman is a member of the Executive Committee of the Law School Alumni Association. She was a member of the Texas Law Review while in school and currently serves as a director of the Texas Law Review Association.

Patman is a partner in the Trial Section of Bracewell Guiliani LP's Houston office. She handles all types of commercial disputes at the trial and appellate levels, including business torts and class actions. She is the first woman to have served on the firm's management committee. In 2003 and 2004, Patman earned the distinction of Texas Super Lawyer in civil litigation defense. She also received the prestigious Karen H. Susman Jurisprudence Award, given each year by the Anti-Defamation League, and was selected a 2000 Woman on the Move by the Houston Chronicle, Channel II, and Texas Executive Women. Both awards recognize professional achievement combined with community service.

Buel Honored for Civil Rights Work

THE TEXAS CIVIL RIGHTS Project honored clinical professor Sarah Buel with its Henry B. González Award for Civil Rights for her work to help the victims of domestic violence.

"I am tremendously honored by this award, both because of my deep admiration for Representative González as a trailblazing activist throughout his life and because of the phenomenal work of the TCRP in steadfastly fighting to protect Texans' civil rights," said Buel.

Buel has worked to help hundreds of victims of domestic violence.

Professor Buel has spent the past 28 years working with battered women, abused children, and juveniles within the legal system. She founded and codirects UT Law's Domestic Violence Clinic. She also teaches Domestic Violence and the Law, and torts courses.

She cofounded the University of Texas Voices Against Violence, a program that has developed a system of comprehensive coordinated services for victims of sexual assault, relationship violence, and stalking. She also cofounded UT's Institute on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault, which focuses on research, pedagogy, and direct services.

Alumni Award Winners

THIS SPRING THE LAW SCHOOL ALUMNI ASSOCIATION HONORED FOUR of its members for their outstanding work. W. Howard Wolf, '59, received the Lifetime Achievement Award; Ronald D. Krist, '72, was named Outstanding Alumnus; the Honorable Preston M. Geren III, '78, was awarded the Distinguished Alumnus Award for Community Service; and the Honorable Edward C. Prado, '72, was awarded the Honorary Order of the Coif.

W. Howard Wolf

W. HOWARD WOLF EARNED HIS BACHELOR OF BUSINESS ADMINistration in 1957 and his law degree, with honors, in 1959, both from UT-Austin. He was elected to the Order of the Coif and served as an associate editor of the Texas Law Review. In 1958 he served as the president of student government for UT-Austin's main campus.

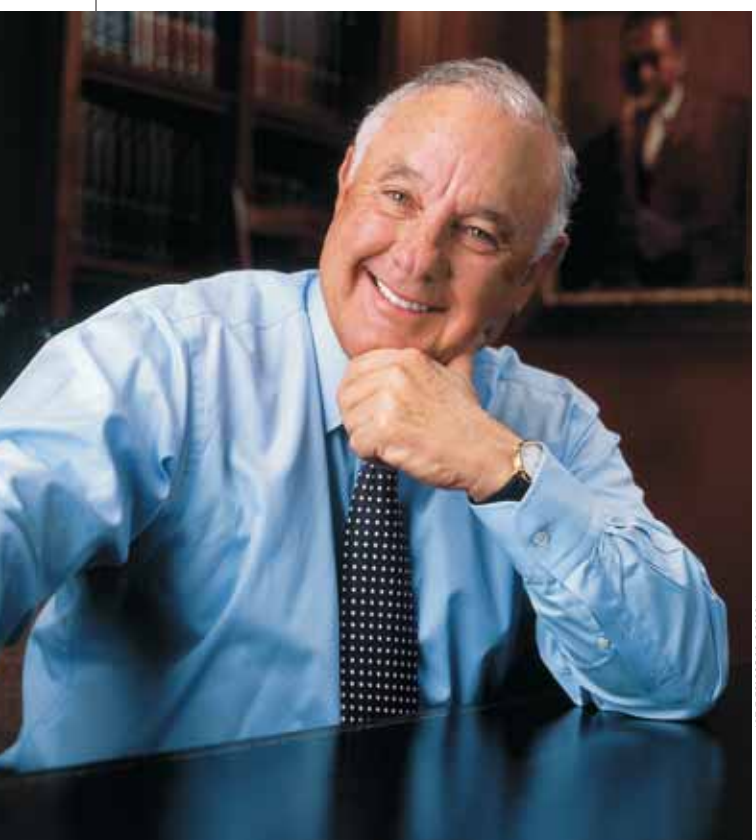
For 25 years, Wolf was a member of the law firm of Fulbright & Jaworski L.L.P., Houston. He specialized in corporate law, eventually becoming chairman of the Corporate Department. In 1972 he served as president of Texas Air Corporation (subsequently Continental Airlines).

From 1984 until 2004 Wolf served as chairman of the board of trustees of the Institute for Rehabilitation and Research in the Texas Medical Center, Houston, Texas. Since 2004 he has been chairman of Stewart & Stevenson Services, Inc., a Houston-based New York Stock Exchange company.

He currently serves on the Texas Tax Reform Commission to help modernize the state tax system, provide property-tax relief, and better finance public schools.

WYATT MCSPADDEN

Wolf is currently working on ways to modernize Texas' tax system.



WYATT MCSPADDEN

Ronald D. Krist

RONALD D. KRIST IS THE FOUNDING PARTNER OF THE KRIST LAW Firm in Houston, Texas. His practice is limited exclusively to litigation, and he has an international reputation as a trial lawyer.

His honors include being chosen by Forbes magazine as one of the Seven Most Successful Lawyers in America.

Krist served as a member of the Texas Public Safety Commission from 1992 until 1997 and as the commission's chairman in 1993. He was an ex officio member of the Texas Racing Commission in 1993, and he currently serves as a member of the Texas State Commission on Judicial Conduct.

He has been a generous philanthropist to UT and other organizations, including the Shriners Hospital for Burned Children, to which he recently donated $1 million, the hospital's largest gift to date. Also, the Carole and Ron Krist Samaritan Center for Counseling and Education in Houston was named in honor of Krist and his wife.

Krist earned his undergraduate degree from UT-Austin in 1960 and graduated from UT Law in 1962.

Forbes* named Krist one of the Seven Most Successful Lawyers in America.

Preston M. Geren III

THIS SPRING, THE HONORABLE PETE GEREN WAS CONFIRMED by the Senate to be undersecretary for the U.S. Army, its second-ranking civilian leader. Before this appointment Geren was a special assistant to Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld. Until November, Geren was the acting secretary of the U.S. Air Force. He joined the Department of Defense in September 2001 to serve as special assistant to the secretary of defense.

Geren began his legal career in private practice in Houston and Fort Worth. He went on to serve for two years as executive assistant to U.S. senator Lloyd M. Bentsen. In 1989 he won a special election to fill a vacancy in the Twelfth Congressional District from Texas, and then he won reelection three more times.

In 1998 he was named Fort Worth's Outstanding Citizen and its Citizen of the Year by the American Heart Association. He also served on the board of directors and as vice chairman of the Dallas–Fort Worth International Airport.

Geren attended the Georgia Institute of Technology for three years before transferring to The University of Texas, where he earned his bachelor's degree in 1974. He earned his law degree at UT Law in 1978.

Geren serves as the army's second-highest-ranking civilian leader.

Judge Edward Prado has served on the federal bench since 1984.

Edward C. Prado

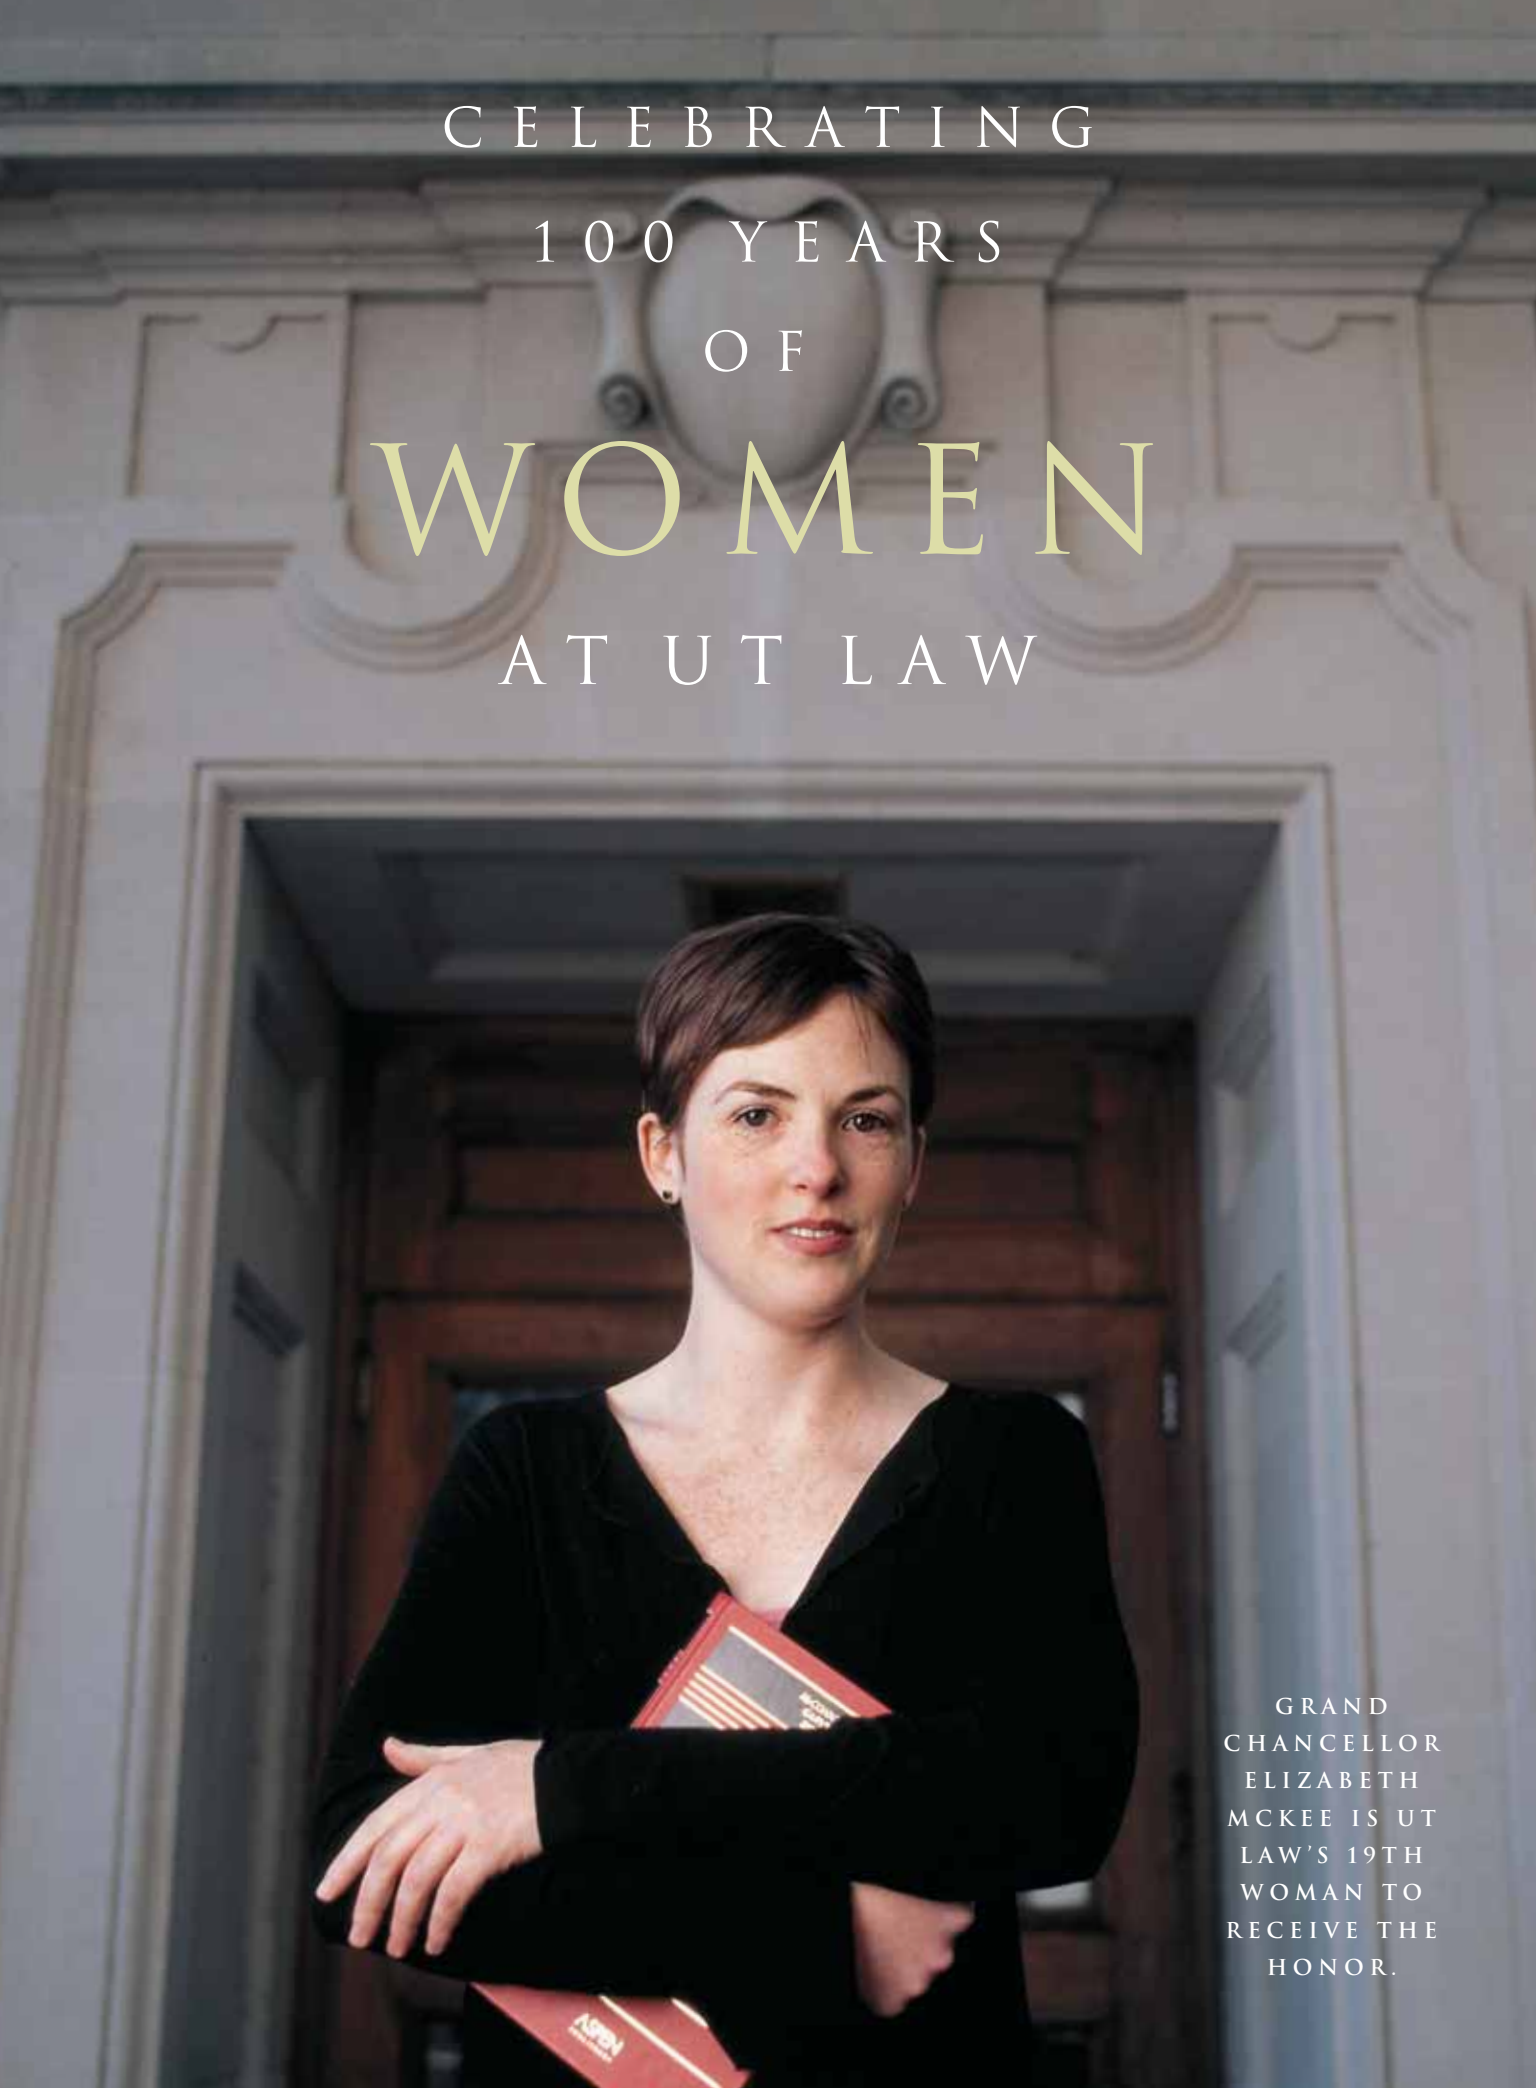
SINCE 2003, THE HONORABLE EDWARD C. PRADO HAS SERVED as a judge on the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. He served for almost twenty years as United States district judge for the Western District of Texas, after his appointment to the federal bench by President Ronald Reagan in 1984.

Before his federal judicial service, Prado served as an assistant district attorney in the Bexar County District Attorney's Office. Thereafter, in 1976 he served in the Federal Public Defender's Office in the Western District of Texas as assistant public defender. In 1980 Prado was appointed to serve as state district judge in Bexar County, Texas. In 1981 President Reagan appointed Prado to serve as U.S. attorney for the Western District of Texas. In May 1972 he was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army. He continued to serve in the U.S. Army Reserve as an infantry officer from 1972 until 1987.

Prado has been a member of the Texas and the San Antonio bar associations since 1972, including service as president, and later director and chairman, of the board of trustees of the San Antonio Bar Foundation. He served on the Texas State Bar Crime Victims Committee, and he was appointed by the late chief justice William Rehnquist to serve as chairman of the Criminal Justice Act Review Committee from 1991 to 1993.

Prado is a 1969 graduate of UT-Austin and earned his law degree from UT Law in 1972.

CELEBRATING 100 YEARS OF WOMEN AT UT LAW



GRAND CHANCELLOR ELIZABETH MCKEE IS UT LAW'S 19TH WOMAN TO RECEIVE THE HONOR.

This year more women law students were educated at the University of Texas at Austin than at any other elite public law school—by a wide margin. It's a position that UT Law has held for at least twenty years.

And women at the Law School don't just attend—they excel. This year's top academic honor, Grand Chancellor, went to both Elizabeth McKee, '06, and James Hawkins, '07. McKee is one of nineteen women who have achieved the honor of being named Grand Chancellors since the program's inception. Three of the past six Grand Chancellors have been women, and since 1970, 43 percent of the Grand Chancellors have been women. These numbers are outstanding compared to the nation's other leading law schools.

Further, three organizations that focus specifically on women law students continue to thrive: the Women's Law Caucus, the Texas Journal of Women and the Law, and the Women's Roundtable.

This year one hundred women law students participated in the Women's Law Caucus. Founded in 1972, this vibrant student organization raises money for charities and advocacy groups; organizes golf clinics, movie nights, self-defense classes, and wine tastings; conducts information sessions for students on women and the law and summer clerkships; and provides members access to a class-outline bank. The most recent outlining session, led by Professor David Simon Sokolow, was standing room only.

The academic counterpart of the caucus, the Texas Journal of Women and the Law (TJWL), celebrated its fifteenth anniversary this year. The journal supports itself through donations, dues, royalties, and subscription fees. UT Law supports this journal and ten other journals through administrative support (accounting, circulation, editorial, and financial planning services), office space, and the proceeds of one endowment. In addition to the journal's academic benefits, the school-student partnership allows students to meet people with like intellectual interests and to experience the kind of important managerial challenges they will face in professional organizations.

The third organization, the Women's Roundtable, is an invitation-only small group of women law students and alumnae who participate in Leadership Texas. These women meet at suppers to discuss contemporary issues with judges, lawyers, and community leaders.

Of course, women's participation is evident throughout the Law School. Women law students have been elected president in three of the past four Student Bar Association administrations. With respect to alumni governance, the Alumni Association recently chose Carrin F. Patman, '82, as president-elect. Alumnae—Linda Addison, '76, Sylvia A. de Leon, '76, and U.S. senator Kay Bailey Hutchison, '67—are influential trustees on the governing board of the Law School Foundation, the fundraising agent for the school.

Professionally, the school's alumnae also hold traditionally powerful positions at law firms, corporations, in the U.S. government, with nongovernmental agencies, as philanthropists, and as nonpractitioners the world over. Some also choose domestic life, and others serve in part-time positions. All of these choices have their own rewards and trade-offs.

Because of the numbers of UT Law–educated women in the workforce, their collective voice provides a strong component of the national debate on the role of women in the law.

That's a lot of progress for a journey that started a hundred years ago.

OPENING THE DOOR

The University of Texas opened its doors to men and women students in 1883, thus taking its position at the forefront of a nationwide trend to make higher education available to women. Within the next fifty years, elite universities—the University of Chicago, Cornell, Stanford, UC-Berkeley—also began to allow women to participate in higher education.

In 1883, UT-Austin's first class saw 163 men and 58 women enrolled. The Law Department's classes remained all male until 1906, when Ella Crim Lynch of Austin enrolled. She attended the 1906–07 long session but did not graduate.

In 1914 UT Law saw the graduations of its first women law students, Irene Gertrude Brown of San Antonio and Rose Zelosky of Fort Worth. They received their law degrees four years before they were legally entitled to vote in federal or state elections. (Governor William P. Hobby extended primary suffrage to women in Texas in 1918.) Brown served as vice president of the senior laws, and Zelosky was vice president of the middle laws. Their academic success—after all, only one in three students made it to graduation in the early years of UT Law—and their leadership opened the doors for more women.

During this period, Alice Drysdale Sheffield, '18, arrived. She served as vice president of both her junior and her senior law classes. In her small graduating class of 24 students, women—Sheffield, Helen Lord Leary, Mildred Marshall, and Nellie Gray Robertson—constituted 17 percent of the class, a ratio not seen again until the 1960s.

The decision to admit Sheffield created a lasting impact on UT Law. Not only was she the youngest woman certified to practice before the Texas Supreme Court, but her work as an attorney for Gulf Oil Corporation allowed her to accrue substantial wealth. Her bequest of $3.5 million to the Law School in 1983 made her the school's most generous benefactor to that time.

From Sheffield's entrance in 1914 until the late 1960s, the school's woman law student population remained around 10 to 15 percent. In the early years, Texas women such as Dorothy Most, '25, Wilminor Morris Carl, '29, and Jane Maverick McMillan, '36, often were the only women in their classes. And even after graduating, some women were urged by family and friends not to practice law.

Their stories have been chronicled in UTLAW and in the 1999 Texas Journal of Women and the Law article "Our Place in History." The stories demonstrate how these pioneers adapted, struck deals with upperclassmen to share notes, participated in class, were at times mentored by law professors and deans. They were also realistic about the school's graduation rate, the social acceptance of women lawyers, and the realities of the Great Depression.

"Studying law seemed to me as restrictive as entering a convent," wrote Jane Maverick McMillan, who graduated in the midst of the Great Depression. "To succeed it required total commitment. Dean Hildebrand told us in contracts class to look closely to the student at our right and then to the one at our left, because only one of the three of us would graduate. It was true, for my class dropped from more than 300 to 120 by graduation."

Further, the legal market could be even less welcoming. Women were new to the workforce. Wilminor Morris Carl, '29, wrote, "I got my degree. I was a lawyer. I closed a real estate transaction. The buyer said, 'Don't you think we should have a lawyer look at this?' I said, 'I am a lawyer.' He stood up, bowed from the waist, and said, 'Well, now I have seen everything.'"

Often these women could not find jobs—either because of the Depression (McMillan wrote of the 75,000 on the relief rolls in San Antonio) or because of discrimination.

The cure for those who wished to practice law? Sometimes it was the dean calling a law firm—as Dean Hildebrand called Baker, Botts, Parker & Garwood in Houston when he heard that Dorothy Most, '25, could find work only with the Gainesville Girls' Reform School. Alumna Wilminor Carl helped Judge Geraldine Tennant, '49, meet other lawyers in Houston and develop a practice there. Other women found no solution to the problem and dropped out of the profession.

The histories of women during these times reflect an appreciation for their education and their professors. "My two years of law at The University of Texas School of Law were memorable," wrote Judge Tennant. "I was stimulated by the atmosphere in the law school—'sink or swim.' It was just what I wanted. As nearly as I could tell, there were no distinctions between men and women in the classes. We had such outstanding professors as Dean Charles McCormick, George Stumburg, Jerre Williams, Robert Stayton, Leon Green, Kenneth Woodward, and others."

Beverley Tarpley, '51, was one of a handful of women in her class. In her history she wrote, "In February of my final semester, the law school placement office received a request to interview a woman graduate. It was the first such request, ever, and I was the only female candidate for graduation, so it was a pretty natural fit." Tarpley graduated and moved to West Texas specifically because she found the culture in the western part of the state more open to working with woman attorneys. "The firm also turned out to be a good fit. It was a small trial firm in Abilene. My job was to sit second chair to a magnificent old trial lawyer and to be sure that all the details got handled. It was the best learning experience that I could possibly have had." Tarpley made partner in 1956 at Abilene's Scarborough Law firm, later Scarborough, Tarpley & Fouts, P.C. Last year Tarpley was honored with the Texas Bar's Outstanding Fifty-Year Lawyer Award.

Tarpley concluded, "In this spartan, sometimes hostile school, we received a magnificent education from a faculty as outstanding in that time as the present faculty is in a much more sophisticated environment."

Twenty years later, the population of women law students grew dramatically, paralleling the women's movement in the United States. In the fall of 1967, 53 women were enrolled. By 1974, 269 women were enrolled. Former Texas secretary of state Myra McDaniel, '75, wrote: "Boy, the law school in the '70s—it was the best of times, and it was the worst of times. We certainly were harassed, because there were enough of us to harass."

By the 1980s and 1990s, women had become a large enough group that, according to oral histories, overt harassment was no longer tolerated. The issues now shifted to improving access to high-paying jobs; sexual harassment at work; juggling family responsibilities; increasing the numbers of women on the faculty; and on a positive note, recounting success in the marketplace, especially in the public sector, where having women on staff was often considered a positive situation.

THE SHAPE OF THE RIVER

Law school can be a trying time for all students. Yet some women law students and alumnae have encountered problems that have understandably estranged them from the Law School.

Over the years the Law School has wrestled with the challenges that its women students, faculty, and administrators face: the need for mentors, discrimination, health issues, and family care responsibilities.

A university's mission adds another layer of complexity. Most other workplaces aren't built as stages for debate and protest. For instance, at many universities, abortion, debate about free speech and pornography, the role of women in various religions, discrimination against women, and other potentially heated topics are often integrated into a typical workday of discussions, research, and occasional student protests. This is not typical corporate life. Navigating gender and discrimination issues, especially when the school's students and faculty are often at the forefront of heated political issues, can be difficult.

CREATING A NEW CULTURE

Linda Hirshman's A Woman's Guide to Law School provides women with data on law schools and a strategy to follow for success. Hirshman's advice? Come to class prepared and speak up; speak to professors during office hours; stay away from abusive teachers; forge alliances with other classmates; realize that the law is complex and there may not be any easy answers; and find a professional mentor. Although she writes for a female audience, not surprisingly her suggestions are also good ideas for men.

UT Law has worked hard to implement a system that supports all students with mentorship, encouragement, and networking opportunities—outreach that starts even before they walk into Townes Hall.

The Law School's new society system stands at the forefront of educational initiatives among law schools. It creates supportive social networks for students during their entire law school career. It is unique in the nation, and even though it's still growing, the society program has seen tremendous success already, as measured by student surveys.

By next year the entire student body will be divided into eight societies, creating social networks for students to work together across the three classes. Before students attend their first day of class, they are called by their society members and welcomed to the Law School. The society structure creates a network through which freshlaws can interact with second- and third-years. This structure is different from that of other law schools, where classes interact with their own first-, second-, and third-year classmates.

Christina de la Garza, '08, said, "The community built by the society program is one of the reasons I decided to come to UT Law over other schools. I believe that it has enhanced my education significantly."

As a result of the new societies, students can meet in small groups on a regular basis with student mentors and faculty advisors. If a student chooses, she or he can use the social and academic opportunities as a means to meet people both at the Law School and in the profession. And many of the first leaders that new students see are women. Nine of 17 society mentors are women, as are 5 of the 8 society program coordinators.

In addition to the societies, law students have access to a range of courses, seminars, and clinics in studies that have, in the past, appealed to women: family law, gender and the law, and domestic violence and the law (though women are well represented in all areas of the law school's courses).

Students and faculty are working together to help our promising lawyers look past graduation. This spring, Professor Ronald Mann worked with the Women's Law Caucus to coordinate a discussion titled "Opting In—Law Firm Reviews, Rainmaking, and Work-Life Balance." Nearly ninety students attended. Said Mann, who had coordinated a similar discussion the year before, "We want to help students start to be proactive about their careers, and the balance between their career and the rest of their lives as early as possible."

Recent hiring of faculty has also been quite balanced. Since 2002, 19 tenure and tenure-track hires have been made, 10 men and 9 women.

And, of course, students have access to The University of Texas at Austin. In 2003 enrollment at UT-Austin totaled 25,952 women and 25,474 men. Cross-registration and university resources broadly expand the array of studies that traditionally appeal to women, although enrollment is open to all students. This past fall, the dean of students opened the new Gender and Sexuality Center. That center's offerings are complemented by research done across campus. For instance, 258 professors (women and men) across UT's Austin campus have affiliated with the Center for Women and Gender Studies. Its Web site provides links to ten UT-Austin women-focused centers and programs and thirty UT-Austin women students' organizations.

THE FUTURE

Women law students across the country now make up roughly half of the law student population. The change has been so dramatic at UT Law that accomplishments by women law students often no longer merit mention of gender in announcements.

Yet persistent issues arise in terms of career selection and why various leadership roles are consistently held by men. A recent study by the American Bar Association's Committee on Women in the Profession reported that in the United States, women account for 30 percent of the lawyers, but law firms have only 17 percent women partners and women are only 15 percent of general counsels of Fortune 500 companies.

No clear answers exist as to why women are not represented in greater numbers in the legal profession. Some studies indicate that when women choose to opt out for a period of time, they face difficult obstacles to returning to work. Others indicate a high level of job dissatisfaction early in their careers.

Now, upon the centennial celebration of women's matriculation at the Law School, alumnae—many from the class of 1976—led by Linda Addison, '76, Nina Cortell, '76, Laura Hagen, '76, Sylvia de Leon, '76, Vicki Land, '76, and Martha Smiley, '72, are working to raise funds to establish the Center for Women in Law and to endow a chair for the center.

The new center seeks to become a significant resource for women law students and women lawyers as they pursue their careers and make their place in the world. It will bring together experienced women lawyers, academicians, public officials, and other professionals to foster professional development through training and mentoring; enhance networking and career advancement; establish and promote best practices for law firms, businesses, and other professional organizations for the advancement and retention of women; provide a center for academic research; and support women lawyers as they advance in their careers.

When Women's Law Caucus president Kayla Dreyer, '07, heard about the plans for a new center, she was elated. "The prospect of a support network like the Center for Women in Law is both exciting and reaffirming. The fact our alumnae are now in a position to help other women develop professionally after law school is a testament to the strides women have made the last hundred years at UT Law. I look forward to taking advantage of the center's resources—not just for professional betterment but also for the opportunity to engage in a dialogue with other attorneys about women's issues and the goal of achieving gender equity across the board in the legal profession. I hope the result of the center will be to build the bridge from graduation to partnership for the women of UT Law."

THE CONTRIBUTORS' REPORT 2005 [SEPTEMBER 1, 2004–DECEMBER 31, 2005]

The Law School's alumni and friends play a critical role in our remarkable success. Across generations, the energy, time, and gifts of our dedicated volunteers and contributors have helped to transform our students' lives and our society. Thank you for your continued investment in The University of Texas School of Law.

Letter from C. Kenneth Roberts

President of the Law School Foundation

This year our Law School once again showed what an integral part it plays in our world. Our school reached out to scores of displaced students from New Orleans. Professors launched an environmental law clinic to help the poor get access to better drinking water. Our faculty conducted the first empirical study of Texas' medical malpractice claims. They are involved in cutting-edge work and litigation regarding intellectual property, capital punishment, corporate governance, international human rights, states' rights, insolvency, redistricting, the tax code, and much more. Our society program is the only program of its kind in the country. Students worked tirelessly in clinics, on journals, and in the classroom. They even launched the nation's first oil, gas, and energy journal—a sixty-student-strong effort training students for work in an industry that needs more young people.

Thanks to your continued generosity, The University of Texas School of Law continues to be one of the best law schools in the world. We thank you for your support of this worthy institution. We can't do it without you. With your help, we look to an even brighter future.

Sincerely yours,

C. Kenneth Roberts, '51

Letter from Del Williams

President of the Law Alumni Association

Thank you for your interest in and support of our Law School. As we continue our drive to be recognized as the nation's best public law school, support from our alumni becomes increasingly important. The Law School is dependent upon three sources of revenue: tuition and fees from students, appropriations from the state, and donations from alumni and friends of the school. The relative contribution of appropriations continues to decline, and our tuition fees now reflect market rates, leaving little, if any, room for increase.

The financial support of former students will be the difference between a good law school and a great law school. The cost of excellence is ever increasing. A competitive labor market for distinguished faculty, advances in technology, and provision of support for stellar students with financial need combine to challenge the funds available to the school. Fortunately, the generosity of our alumni helps fill this breach.

Over the last five years the number of alumni supporting the school has increased significantly. With continued support, the Law School will continue its record of achievement. Thank you to all of our contributors.

Sincerely yours,

Del Williams, '85

MAJOR GIFTS

WAYNE READUD PUBLIC INTEREST SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

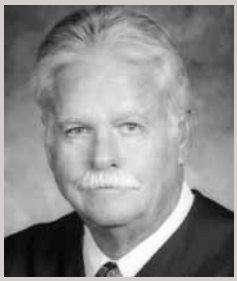
MARK LOW

In 2005 a major gift by Mr. Wayne A. Reaud launched the Wayne Reaud Public Interest Scholarship program. This program will allow five students per class who precommit to working in public service for three years post graduation to attend the school tuition-free and to receive an annual stipend.

The gift of $350,000 per year in perpetuity is the largest single gift UT Law School has received to date.

Wayne A. Reaud is the founder of the firm of Reaud, Morgan & Quinn. He received his law degree from Texas Tech University in 1974. His son graduated from UT Law in 2004 and his daughter is currently a freshlaw. He is a Life Fellow of the Texas Bar Association, a Fellow of the International Society of Barristers and is listed in Best Lawyers in America. Reaud was also instrumental in establishing the Beaumont Foundation of America.

JUDGE ROBERT M. PARKER ENDOWED CHAIR IN LAW



Friends of Judge Parker are endowing a chair in his honor. Judge Robert M. Parker, '64, of Tyler, Texas, was appointed to the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Texas by President Carter in 1979. He ultimately served as chief judge. In 1994 President Clinton appointed him to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, where he served until his retirement.

BILLY H. GRAGG MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP

Mrs. Jaquelyn L. Gragg, widow of Billy Gragg, '53, and other members of his family have honored his memory with an endowed scholarship.

Gragg, an enthusiastic UT Law supporter, received both his B.A. and his law degree from UT-Austin. He was a sole practitioner for 49 years, a partner in Gragg Drilling Company for 57 years, and managing partner and general counsel to Gragg Land and Cattle Co., Ltd., for 11 years.

LAW PARTNERS

In 2001 Loeffler Tuggey Pauerstein Rosenthal LLP inaugurated the Law Partners Program with a pledge of an annual gift to the Law School for each of ten years. From that initial gift, the Law Partners Program has grown to become an important resource for our school. There are three sponsorship levels within the Law Partners Program. Platinum Law Partners pledge a gift of $50,000 per year for ten years, Gold Law Partners pledge $30,000 per year for ten years, and Silver Law Partners pledge $10,000 per year for ten years.

LAW STUDENT SOCIETIES

Fulbright & Jaworski L.L.P. provided a generous gift to help fund the Law School's new student society program. According to Student Life director Allyson Childs, '95, "As far as we know, the society program is unique among law schools because it brings students from different classes together in an institutional way. We believe that providing first-year students with an opportunity to get to know upperclassmen is a major benefit of the program. In addition, we hope that the societies will help build camaraderie between students and faculty and help create a sense of community at the Law School." The program seems to work. According to second-year student Devon Nippes, "Students are able to socialize with their classmates outside of school, as well as get to know their faculty advisor on a personal level. The program fosters many friendships—I have met some of my best friends through my society!"

SUNFLOWER SPONSORS

During the school year the Sunflower Society Committee holds several events at which 3Ls are encouraged to begin pledging financial support to the Law School as they become alumni. The Law School thanks these firms for their generous sponsorship of all Sunflower Society activities.

KEETON FELLOWS

In fall 2004, the Townes Hall Society and Clark Fellows programs merged with the Keeton Fellows Program. Today, donors to the Townes Hall Society who pledged $10,000 annually for five years are Platinum Keeton Fellows. Former Clark Fellows, who pledged $5,000 annually for five years, are now Gold Keeton Fellows. Silver Keeton Fellows contribute $2,500 annually for a period of five years, and Bronze Keeton Fellows contribute $1,000 annually for five years. Alumni who graduated 15 or fewer years ago receive recognition as a Keeton Fellow by contributing to any of the four levels for five consecutive years at half the stated amount.

THE SUNFLOWER SOCIETY

The Sunflower Society recognizes newly graduated law students who pledge to support the Law School's Annual Fund for the three years immediately following their graduation with a first-year gift of $100, a second-year gift of $200, and a third-year gift of $300. Donors are invited to an annual event at the Law School and are recognized with a certificate and a commemorative brick in the breezeway.

SHEFFIELD'S SUBSTANCE

Alice Drysdale Sheffield was a gifted student, a lawyer, and a generous patron of UT Law.

Alice Jane Drysdale Sheffield was born on December 8, 1896, in Palestine, Texas. She moved to Houston as a teenager and graduated from old Central High School.

Sheffield entered the University of Texas in 1914. According to a newspaper article appearing in the Austin American she was a "Bluebonnet Belle" and "one of the few girls in the history of the university who have had the stamina to stay in the law department for three years." While maintaining a fine academic record, she actively participated in athletics and student government. She lettered in basketball and was elected vice president of both her junior and her senior law school classes. She was also an active member of the Phi Mu sorority.

Sheffield graduated from UT Law with a bachelor of laws degree in 1918, only the third woman to achieve the honor. She was admitted to the State Bar of Texas the same year. She spent most of her legal career in the law department at Gulf Oil Corporation, in which she advanced to associate general counsel. She was the first UT Law alumna to actively practice law.

Sheffield in 1918.

Throughout her life she participated in University activities. She was a lifetime member of the Chancellor's Council and a member of the President's Associates. She donated more than $500,000 to benefit The University of Texas System during her lifetime and was responsible for matching gifts to the Law School Foundation from Gulf Oil and the Exxon Corporation. She also gave substantial gifts to fund Law School professorships. In addition, Sheffield made gifts of valuable antiques, paintings, silver, and porcelain to the Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center.

When Alice Jane Drysdale Sheffield died at the age of 98 on December 10, 1984, she bequeathed $3.5 million to UT Law to establish multiple teaching endowments. These included the Alice Jane Drysdale Sheffield Regents Chair, the Earl E. Sheffield Centennial Regents Chair, the Minerva House Drysdale Regents Chair, the Fannie Coplin Regents Chair, the Anne Green Centennial Professorship, and the Alice McKean Young Regents Chair in Law, as well as funded multiple professorships. To that date, she was the most generous alumnus in the history of The University of Texas Law School.

100 YEARS OF WOMEN AT UT LAW

*Yale Law School admitted a woman law student who graduated in 1886. Alice Rufie Blake Jordan applied using her initials and was admitted under the assumption that she was a man. The rules for admission were revised, and women were not officially admitted until 1919.

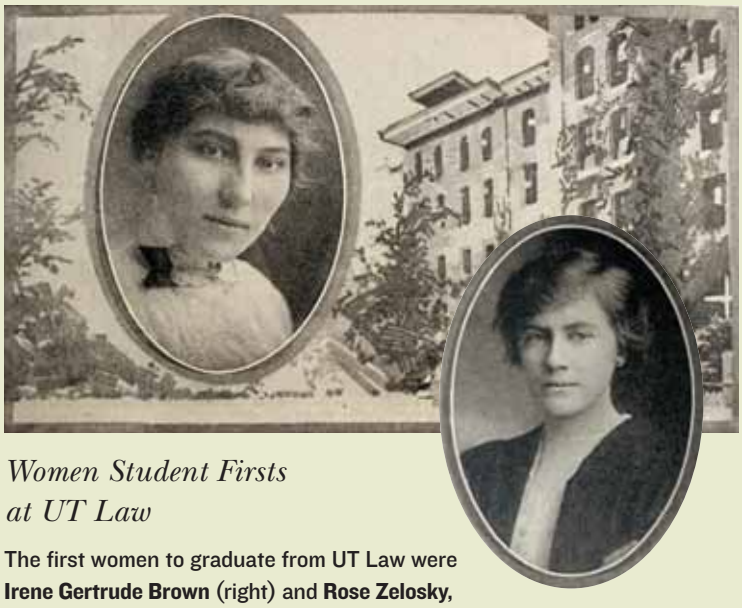
THE BEST AND THE BRIGHTEST



Women Student Firsts at UT Law

The first women to graduate from UT Law were Irene Gertrude Brown (right) and Rose Zelosky, who received their LL.B. degrees in 1914. Both served as class vice presidents during different class years.

100 YEARS OF WOMEN AT UT LAW

The first woman to attend UT Law was Mrs. Ella Crim Lynch (hometown Austin, Texas), who attended in the 1906–07 long session. She did not graduate from the Law School.

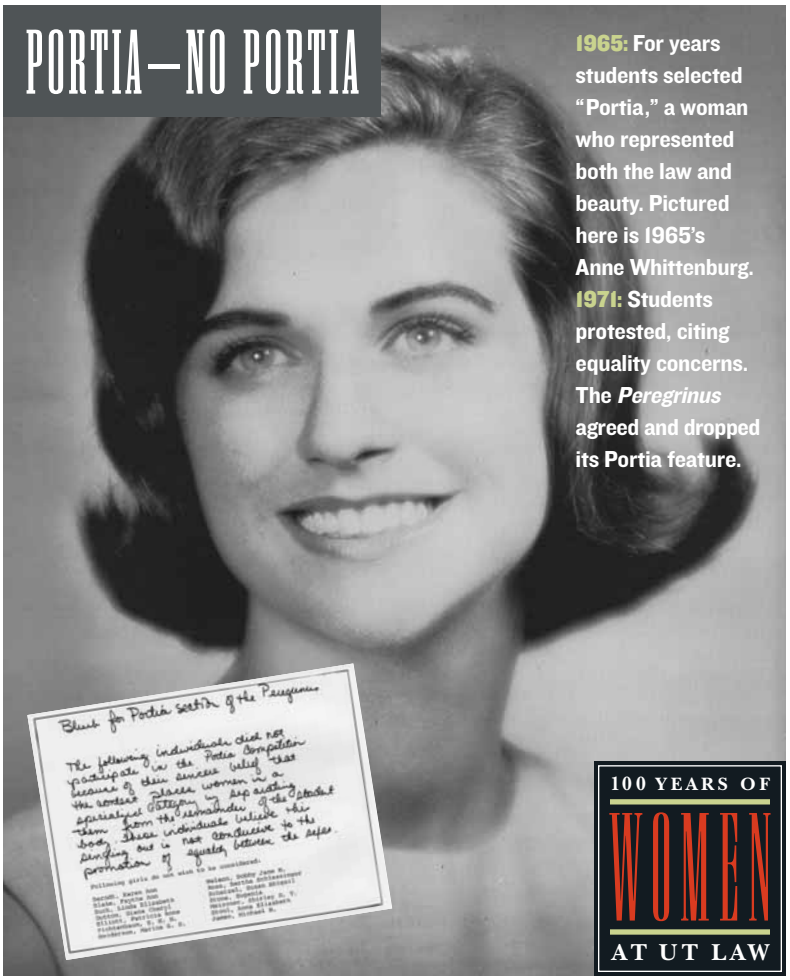
PORTIA—NO PORTIA



1965: For years students selected "Portia," a woman who represented both the law and beauty. Pictured here is 1965's Anne Whittenburg. 1971: Students protested, citing equality concerns. The Peregrinus agreed and dropped its Portia feature.

ISN'T SHE GRAND?

Top Honors for Women Since 1970

U. Texas: 43% (19/44) Since 1970, the Grand Chancellor has had 44 recipients, 19 female, 25 male. The first woman law student received the award in 1972.

U. Michigan: 34% (42/123) Since 1970, the Bates Award has had 123 recipients; 81 male, 42 female. The first woman received the award in 1974.

Harvard: Harvard Law School has had three women law students receive the Fay diploma, its top honor.

Below middle: Theresa Eilers, the 1978 Grand Chancellor. In UT Law's early years, students voted for chancellors and grades were just one factor. Ione Steele, '37, though second in her class, was not elected. However, gender was not explicitly specified as a criterion for exclusion.

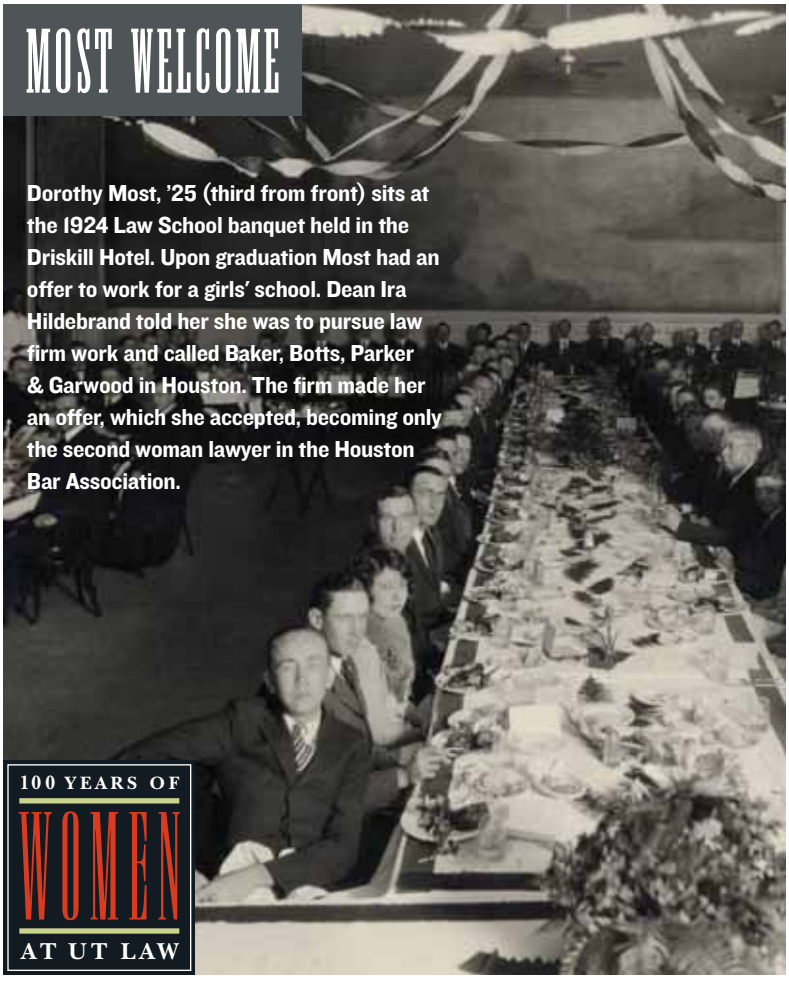
MOST WELCOME



Dorothy Most, '25 (third from front) sits at the 1924 Law School banquet held in the Driskill Hotel. Upon graduation Most had an offer to work for a girls' school. Dean Ira Hildebrand told her she was to pursue law firm work and called Baker, Botts, Parker & Garwood in Houston. The firm made her an offer, which she accepted, becoming only the second woman lawyer in the Houston Bar Association.

Monuments of Paper

BY MICHAEL WIDENER BOOKS "CONTAIN A POTENCY of life," wrote John Milton. This is particularly true of great books, which reach across barriers of time and space, and live on long after they are published.

The same could be said of great professors. Their teaching and research forge new connections, and they leave legacies in the students they molded and in their writings. George W. Stumberg was such a professor. He taught at UT Law for forty years, until his death in 1964, and was a leading authority on conflict of laws, criminal law, comparative law, and admiralty. His tombstone reads: "His Students Are His Monument."

Several students recently joined with his children to aquire a great book as a fitting tribute to their great teacher and his wife and collaborator, Ione Steele Stumberg, '37.

The book is Praxis Rerum Criminalium ("The Practice of Criminal Law") by Joost Damhoudere (Antwerp, 1556), which was the standard authority on the criminal law of northern Europe for a century. It is famous for its 56 woodcuts that illustrate a variety of crimes (murder, forgery, grave robbing) and criminal procedure. Only three other U.S. libraries own the edition acquired by the Tarlton Law Library. Tarlton's copy is particularly attractive, still in its original, carefully restored leather binding stamped with figures from Greek mythology.

The Praxis Rerum Criminalium is a fitting tribute. Although George Stumberg is perhaps best known as a conflicts scholar, he placed special importance on promoting excellence in criminal law. He wrote that the criminal lawyer is "the window through which the public looks at the legal profession." Ione Stumberg, who graduated second in her Law School class and collaborated closely in his research and writing, played a large part in the posthumous publication of his final work, the 1965 Supplement to Stumberg's Texas Criminal Law casebook.

The former students and family whose generous gifts helped purchase the book are Robert H. Caldwell, Jr.,'48, daughter Martha Mel Stumberg Edmunds, son-in-law Dr. I. Henry Edmunds, daughter Lucette Stumberg Flanagan, Chauncey D. Leake, Jr., '55; the Honorable Frank Maloney, '54; and Neilyn Griggs Maloney, '67.

Other volumes in the Rare Book Collection that honor Law School faculty and alumni include:

Argument of William H. Seward, in Defence of William Freeman: on His Trial for Murder (Auburn, N.Y., 1846), given in honor of Judge Benjamin Dudley Tarlton by the Tarlton family, on the centennial of his joining the UT Law faculty, 2004. An eloquent argument in favor of the insanity defense and a plea to set aside racial prejudice against Freeman, an African American.

Pardoux Duprat, Lexicon Ivris Civilis et Canonici (Lyons, 1580). Given in honor of Neal S. Manne, '80, by his mother, Beverly Manne.

Henry Campbell Black, A Dictionary of Law (St. Paul, 1891), the first edition of Black's, given in honor of Professor Roy M. Mersky by Bryan A. Garner, '84, editor of the eighth edition of Black's, and Pan Garner.

Sir William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England (London, 1791), given in memory of James Little, '26, by his son Jack Little, '57.

As this story went to press, Professor Roy Mersky announced that on behalf of faculty and alumni, the book Report on the Inner Temple Pictures of Judge Littleton and Sir Edward Coke, by Inderwick and Field, has been donated in honor of Michael Widener for his service to the school.
